The "Theologies That Have Changed the Course of Missions" introduces the major theologies that have molded the worldview of Christians and thus affect the motivation and approach to how to fulfill the Great Commission. The reason missions exist is because the biblical and theological mandates give the church its priorities. What we believe about reality and truth has direct affect on how seriously we are motivated for planting the gospel in the most unreached frontiers. The theological issues introduced in this book focus on their impact on world missions. They include:OT Perspective of missionsNT Perspective of missionsEvangelical views on Hell and missionsCall of God and missionsPentecostals-Charismatics and missionsSpiritual Warfare and missionsCalvinism and missionsEschatology and missionsThis book will explain why we practice missions the way we do. Different views on these sometimes controversial issues are presented and how they have molded our commitment to world evangelism.
